Information Security for staff and clients

Ouno Creative is committed to ensuring the integrity and security of its business information with particular attention given to personal and sensitive data where inappropriate use or inadequate maintenance and safeguarding could have serious repercussions. Ouno Creative policies and procedures are based on the guidelines set out by the ICO (Information Commissioners Office) and the Data Protection Act 1998. We have addressed the requirements for a secure operating environment, made an assessment of the risks that the Company faces and relevant legal and best-practice requirements.

Responsibility for information security sits with the Directors and the Studio manager.

BASIC PRINCIPLES WE FOLLOW

In accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998, Ouno Creative will ensure that personal information is:

- fairly and lawfully processed;
- processed for specified purposes;
- adequate, relevant and not excessive;
- accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date;
- not kept for longer than is necessary;
- processed in line with the rights of the individual;
- kept secure; and
- not transferred to countries outside the European Economic Area unless the information is adequately protected.

INTERNAL DATA SECURITY

Staff HR files and personal/employment documentation is stored in Password Protected folders on Ouno Creative's own self-managed server located within our building. Access to the Admin section of the folder is available only to the two directors and the Studio Manager.

There is a HR folder containing printed staff employment documentation. This is stored in a locked cabinet accessible only by the two Directors.

EXTERNAL DATA SECURITY

Ouno Creative operates a secure data and information environment, ensuring complete commercial confidence for our customers. This is important as we work in sectors such as Healthcare and Defence, which expect the highest levels of data security from us.

To facilitate this Ouno Creative have:

- Dedicated self-managed server on-site running a rigorous back-up and restore protocols. This ensures clients that their data and projects are not stored off-site or in the Cloud
- We employ a professional third-party company to manage our website/network security and run a comprehensive data back-up program. This company also runs constant automated checks on our hosted websites to ensure they are resistant to
- To minimise 'conflict of interests' we can 'silo' projects between teams
- Our physical site security is impressive. Our offices have 24/7 manned security. There are three sets of locked doors to pass through to gain access to the studio, which is on the 2nd floor of the Hub Building
- All staff are required to sign an NDA agreement concerning client confidentiality

INFORMATION/DATA FOR MARKETING AND ADVERTISING PURPOSES

Ouno Creative handles marketing campaigns for our clients. This often takes the form of electronic marketing (e.g. mailshots, HTML email campaigns). Therefore we make every effort to comply with the Privacy and Electronics Communications Regulations.

Ouno Creative will make every effort to comply with the Direct Marketing Code of Practice, which sets out standards of ethical conduct and best practice in direct marketing. The main relevant principles we adhere to are as follows:

The first principle: organisations must process personal data fairly and lawfully. In particular, they will usually need to tell the individuals concerned who they are and that they plan to use those details for marketing purposes - see the Privacy notices code of practice for more guidance on this area. Organisations will also need to tell people if they plan to pass those details on to anyone else, including selling or sharing the data for marketing purposes, and are likely to need their consent to do so. Organisations must not do anything that people would not reasonably expect or which would cause them unjustified harm.

The second principle: organisations must only collect personal data for specified purposes, and cannot later decide to use it for other 'incompatible' purposes. So they cannot use people's details for marketing purposes if they originally collected them for an entirely different purpose.

The fourth principle: organisations must ensure that personal data is accurate and, where necessary, kept up to date. So a marketing list which is out of date, or which does not accurately record people's marketing preferences, could breach the DPA.

Ouno Creative will comply with the following guidelines:

Section 11 of the DPA also gives individuals the right to prevent their personal data being processed for direct marketing. An individual can, at any time, give written notice to stop (or not to begin) using their details for direct marketing. In other words, organisations must stop any marketing directed at a particular individual if that person writes and asks them to stop. The organisation does not have to reply, but it is good practice to acknowledge the request and confirm that the marketing will stop.

The organisation must stop marketing within a reasonable period. The DPA does not say it has to stop immediately. For example, if a particular mass marketing campaign is already underway, it might be difficult to prevent one individual from receiving any further materials. However, in most circumstances we expect that calls, texts or other electronic communications should stop within 28 days of receiving the objection, and postal communications should stop within two months. And if the organisation can reasonably stop sooner, it must.
